

I am a recent subscriber with XM radio. On occassion I will travel to other states and I've found the satellite local traffic and weather information a valuable service. I was recently in the Chicago area driving during a thunderstorm and I found using XM radios weather and traffic station to be very helpful. I would never have surfed the local stations in hope of finding the the travel information on a timely basis. I would be very disappointed if the FCC banned this service.

Sincerely, Joe Groebner
